

2022

MICROBIOLOGY AT RUTGERS UNIVERSITY SYMPOSIUM

REGISTER HERE (Deadline April 29th)

https://rutgers.ca1.qualtrics.com/jfe/form/SV_5AefXBpNNU4P1Qy

ABOUT

The symposium organized by the Department of Biochemistry and Microbiology brings together microbiologists from across the Rutgers campuses for a day filled with speakers, and student poster presentations. We have an exciting program in store with sessions on Microbial biochemistry and molecular biology, Health and host-microbe interactions, and Environmental ecosystems.

 Thursday, May 5, 2022

 9:00 AM - 6:00 PM

 Traves Hall, Douglass Student Center
100 George St, New Brunswick, NJ 08901

Registration:

Use the registration link above to sign up to attend the event and if you would also like to be a student poster presenter.

Deadline: Friday, April 29th

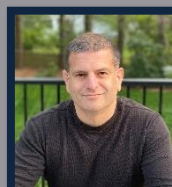

Speakers

"Metallic signatures of the origins of life"

Yana Bromberg

Biochemistry and Microbiology, SEBS

"Structure-function studies of bacterial transformation"

Matthew Neiditch

Microbiology, Biochemistry and Molecular Genetics, Rutgers New Jersey Medical School

"The landscape of molecular changes underlying 22 years of bacterial adaptation"

Premal Shah

Genetics, SAS

"Bidirectional Link between Gut Microbiota and Exercise Tolerance"

Sarah Campbell

Kinesiology and Health, SAS

"Characterizing Oral Microbial Community Profiles in Children Perinatally Exposed/Infected with HIV in Nigeria"

Modupe Coker

Oral Biology and Epidemiology, Rutgers Schools of Dental Medicine and Public Health

"Mucolytic commensal bacteria regulate gut mucosal immunology"

Nan Gao

Biological Sciences, Rutgers, Newark

"Anaerobic debrominating bacteria as symbionts of marine sponges"

Max Häggblom

Biochemistry and Microbiology, SEBS

"Ants, microbes, and symbiosis"

Lily Khadempour

Earth and Environmental Sciences, Rutgers, Newark

"Geomicrobiology of Assimilatory Sulfate Reduction"

Nathan Yee

Environmental Sciences, SEBS

Use the link above to sign up to participate in the student poster session.